Railway Operations Live is an interactive two-and-a-half day course that offers a glimpse into “a day in the life of a railway crew member.” This introductory program on Canadian railway operations is designed and delivered by the Railway Association of Canada in collaboration with industry experts.

The course covers a range of topics: safety standards, the Canadian Rail Operating Rules (CROR), railcar design, train make-up and inspections, locomotive operation, and switching demonstrations. It also gives a basic introduction to track inspection and maintenance, including the reporting of potential defects. Participants will have the opportunity to safely switch cars and build a train in a real railway environment as part of this hands-on training experience.

Course instructors are North American railway experts and draw upon their years of experience to offer participants an informative view of the industry.

Registration date for online registration will be announced soon. For more information, please contact:
